male branches of almost every generation since the death of Charles I. Francis Leveson, wife of the baronet, brought to the Countess of Liverpool a daughter, Haling in Kent, and Trillick in the chair, while Lady Jane Granville, wife of the fourth baronet, and co-heiress of the Countess of Bath, added to the family of the Countess of Granville. Two territorially and agriculturally enriched, the Leveson-Gowersons became powerful barons. The second Earl secured the hand of the fourth heiress, the Lady of the Marquis, to a considerable portion of the Bridgewater estate, and was created a Marquess, while his son, the fourth Earl, was the baronet of the Marquess of Sarum. The heiress of one of the last earldoms of Scotland and the proprietress of more than one-half of the county of Northampton, under the title of the Lady of Euston, conferred upon her son, the Marquess of Euston, by her grandson, the third Duke, the name of the traditional good fortune of his race. The Marquess of Euston, who married the Countess of Warwick, has married the Countess of Warwick. Hay-Mackenzie, of Cromarty, and has obtained for her a peerage in her own right as Countess of Warwick.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.
—In the Australian of 3rd instant, the Sydney correspondent of that journal gives a long description of the Sydney Exhibition, in which he states that the committee had "to trust largely to the kindness and taste of the editor of the Botanic Gardens to make the inside of the place presentable."
Will you allow me to correct a statement which is but only true. Mr. Charles Moore and his staff have on this and all former occasions been most liberal, indeed in this to thank Messrs. Gordon, Prince, Knox, Baptist, derren, Gay—and more particularly Messrs. Graham, James, and others, who, despite the serious injury which detention in the building must inflict on their valuations, so very kindly placed them at the disposal of the steward (Mr. Catlett) ; to the latter and his indefatigable and zealous assistant, Mr. Mortimore, are due the thanks of the printer, and of our good friend Mr. Rowland, who so graciously consented to share with them.

Trusting that the correspondent of the Australasian may be satisfied with the above.

A MYSTERIOUS CABLEGRAM.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

—In our cable telegram, dated the 2nd instant, there was mixed up, and the message intended to be somewhat mystic little firm, for we can attach no meaning to them from our vocabulary. They are—

"mish fifty fruit Etrickdale."

"addition placed Hawk Rawdon."

We had the message repeated by the land lines, and the

THE RISE OF GREAT FAMILIES.

B. Burke, the Ulster King of Arms, has collected with care a series of historical facts con-ing the rise and progress of great families in the United Kingdom. He points out that many of the most distinguished families, though of many themselves, owe their rank to the influence and fortune they have acquired through marriage with business, and instances the following:

Richard Grenville, of Wootton, a Buckinghamshire gentleman, married in 1710 Hester Temple, a sister and heiress of Vincent Cobham, and so became possessed of the Temple estates.

ir son became Earl Temple, a statesman of the
of George II and George III and grand son became Earl Temple, a statesman of the age of George II. and George III., and gained a dilectee co-heiress, Ann Chambers, of Hanworth, his nephew and successor, George, Earl Temple, afterwards Marquess of Buckingham, married as his heiress, Lady Mary, daughter of Earl Nugent, and thus obtained for the Grenvilles the whole of the great estates. But the greatest alliance of all in the Grenville family was the marriage of Richard, second Marquess of Buckingham, with Lady Anne, daughter and sole heiress of the last Duke of Bedford.

In consequence of this illustrious con-tion, the Marquess of Buckingham was created

In consequence of this illustrious connection, the Marquess of Buckingham was created Duke of Buckingham and Chandos, while his son became senior representative of the Princess Mary Stuart, daughter and co-heir of Henry VII. A curious instance of a sequence of heiresses is seen in the title of the Lovelace-Gowens. The ancestors themselves were probably an old Saxons family, and were included in one of the earliest grants of baronets; but their greatness is due to the
